Reading

The reading assignment is Langton (1993).

There is a lot written on this topic in the wake of Langton's paper. Bauer (2015) is one example. Section 4.1 of West (2022) offers an overview. Eaton (2017) leans further into aesthetics rather than philosophy of language, offering an account of feminist pornography that is grounded in views about the power and authority of pornography that are similar to those found in Langton. (Those of you who recently attended the Illinois Philosophical Association may have met Eaton!)
